OF ESCAPING DEATH

Will Plead Temporary Insanity—State is Undecided

By United Press
CHICAGO, March 16—Nobility paraded into a business like superior court room here today as dissatisfied heirs of the late Levi Leiter, Chicago merchant prince, fought over a $30,000,000 prize.

The heirs are fighting over management of the estate which for the past few years has been in the hands of Joseph Leiter, son of the pioneer merchant. The noble descendants of Leiter contend Joseph's hands have been too busy building up his private fortune.

Heading the dissatisfied group is Lady Margaret, countess of Suffolk and Berks, who instituted the original suit to oust Joseph Leiter as trustee. She is a daughter of the late Lord Curzon, who married Mary Leiter, sister of the trustee.

While Lady Margaret is the only one of the noble-women represented in court, she is given moral support by Lady Cynthia Moseley, another heiress of Lord Curzon. While the Lady Cynthia is not here now, she was here recently for her part in the "thirty million war" and gave depositions to use in the case.

Leiter is forced to get along without titled help, but he does have assistance of his sister who ranks high in British society. She is Mrs. Nancy Lathrop Carver Campbell, wife of Col. Collier Campbell of the British army.

The feud dates back some eighteen or twenty years to the time when Joseph Leiter frowned upon his sister's marriage to Lord Curzon. This didn't please the British nobleman so much and in 1908 he openly stated that Joseph Leiter was a "dishonest man."

That started the battle which brought things to a Chicago court today.

There is a difficulty about Joseph Leiter's alleged difficulty on the Chicago Board of Trade. Dissenting contention has it that Levi Leiter gave his son $9,000,000 to get square all around over the wheat corner that failed. They claim the elder Leiter charged his son $2,000,000 and that the younger Leiter still owes the estate seven million dollars.

STRANGERS SOUGHT AS SINGLE CLEW IN BURGLARY PROBES

Pair Who Visited Stores Believed To Have Been Yeggs

Clews have been uncovered by police in connection with the burglary of the Hutchinson and Gibney Co. and Jobe Bros. Co. department stores Saturday night or early Sunday morning in which merchandise and cash amounting to $1,100 was stolen.

"The robberies were executed with more efficiency and thoroughness and with less difficulty than any heretofore in Xenia in my experience," declared Police Chief M. E. Graham Tuesday.

It has been almost definitely established the burglaries occurred either late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

They were of the most ingenuous character in the recollection of members of the police department.

Part of the locks on the front doors of both stores were detached and replaced in such a manner as to deceive Charles Phillips, merchant police officer, who remembers examining both doors on his rounds in the business section.

Police Chief Graham has notified authorities of Toledo, Columbus, Dayton, Springfield, Wilmington and Hamilton of the robberies furnishing a general description of two strangers seen in both stores Saturday night by employees, and who are said to have acted in a suspicious manner.

The two men, well dressed, registered at a local hotel Saturday. They left the hotel early Sunday morning. Police have the names and addresses they wrote on the register.

The pair made a prolonged tour of each department store Saturday night.

By a coincidence, patrolmen on night duty were experiencing an unusually busy time with liquor law violators as evidenced by the fact thirteen arrests were made over the week end. Police say the manner of local robberies parallels a similar robbery in Chillicothe last week.

WHAT MY RELIGION MEANS TO ME

By R. E. BROWN,
Minister First Baptist Church.
My Religion means the Only Rational Explanation of the Universe. Among many voices one speaks with authority. God, a personal Being, created all things. There is a purpose in the plan and everything is moving toward an ultimate goal that is glorious. The world is spiritual and the highest value in it is the soul. But God is more than Ruler of the universe, He is my Father. The Bible is His Word revealed to me. Prayer is an experience as real as any other personal conversation.

Then, my religion is the answer to My Personal Problems. Our greatest problem is simply how to live. This is a religious problem. My hopes and dreams find expression only in religious experiences and activities. I find here a worthy goal and a worthy motive for my life. By exercising Faith in Jesus I find forgiveness for sin. Through the cleansing of my own heart I have peace with God which is essential to worthy living.

Again, my religion gives a meaning to life. Life is not an accident. God's plan, while big enough to take in the universe, is great enough to include every life. My greatest fear is that I shall fail to carry out the Divine plan and so make a failure of my opportunity, hence my religion means constant fellowship with the Spirit of God and constant dependence on Him for direction in the affairs of life. My highest happiness is found in His fellowship and, after that, in useful service to others under His direction.

But, to condense years of experience into a dozen words, my religion means comfort in sorrow, strength in discouragement, joy in trial, and then—the assurance of fellowship with the Savior and saved loved ones in a better world beyond the grave.

FORTIETH SNOW IS BRIEF BLIZZARD

A blizzard similar to those described in books of "the great open spaces" struck Xenia and environs early Monday night and had all the car-marks of a regular tempest.

Snow began to fall about 6 p.m., and aided by a strong wind gusts of snow were blown with great ferocity and traffic was impeded by the storm. Pedestrians were coated with white after being in the storm only a short time. The snow storm came from the north-west and lasted about a half hour.

Temperature had risen a fraction Tuesday morning and the last snow proceeded to melt. Xenians who kept an eye on the weather report that there have been forty snow storms in the city during the five months of winter. March lion continues to show life and has displayed no intention of giving over the stage to the gentle Spring lamb.

Ivan Bagdanov, of Moscow, although 114 years old, is still ambitious and he has just become the youngest old man in Russia by undergoing an operation in which he had transplanted to him glands from a young man killed in an accident.

A Dallas, Texas canary, disappointed when she broke one of her three eggs and her mistress gave another, did her best to compensate for the loss by hatching twins from the third egg.

Max Marzel, of Newark, dreamed vividly of a street. He went there next day and found his auto, stolen the week before.

Herbert Clark was about to wed his fiancee, who, by a seeming coincidence, bore the same last name, when his father frantically telegraphed that Herbert and his Catherine are half-brother and sister.

Weird sounds, phantom figures, ghostly lights in a haunted house near Rome puzzled the natives living nearby. A skeptical investigator hid in the house and had his ears soundly boxed by the "ghost."

The Sheriff of Benton, Ill., shakes a wicked hoof, and when a Charleston contest was staged there he was a competitor. But when he returned to the jail he found that in his absence six of his prisoners had waltzed out of the county jail.

He stared at her in surprise that changed to amusement.

"Quainter and more old-fashioned than ever, aren't you," he said at last.

"Well, you're the first one of your kind I've ever met; maybe that's why I've fallen so hard for you. Now listen to me, Mary. My wife and I have nothing in common—we might as well be divorced, for all we ever see of each other. We're not even good friends. She lives out West and I spend all my time in the East. I'm crazy about you, and I can do a lot for you if you'll just let me be a friend. That's all I'll ask, just that you'll let me be a friend to you. That's not much, is it?"

"But I—you said—"

"I asked you to go abroad with me. I know. Let me tell you I think I was free to marry you. But that was because I didn't understand you. I didn't realize that you're the kind of girl you are. Mary, I promise that I'll never make that mistake again. Aren't you going to be kind to me, and let me make up for that mistake?"

Mary wanted to believe him. She felt hideously alone. Everyone had gone back on her, she told herself, everyone but him. And yet—

She shook her head decidedly.

"I can't," she told him. "I'd like to, but I just can't."

He looked angry at first; then he smiled, and held out his hand.

"All right, let's shake hands anyway. And you'll let me take you home, won't you, please? You can't go out at this hour alone, and Hilda told me that you lived way across town from here."

Mary hesitated a moment. She was really afraid to take the long trip alone. It was after midnight. She'd have to wait hours for a car, and at the other end there'd be a walk of four blocks through deserted streets. His taxi was waiting outside.

"All right, I'll go," she said at last.

She realized, as they reached the downtown section of the city, that she was frightfully hungry.

DON'T OVERLOOK A GOOD THING

From Jas Edwards, Montgomery, Ala., comes this letter containing a valuable lesson for all men. "I am a man since taking FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR. Can sleep all night, soreness in my chest is gone, so is the bad cough. My wife takes it for coughs, colds and croup, and it always helps." Stops tickling in throat, nervous hacking and puts a soothing healing coating on a raw throat. It is a real tonic. Don't overlook a good thing.

FATALITIES DUE TO CARELESSNESS

THE FACT that there were, according to the National Safety Council, over 21,000 fatal accidents from motor vehicle operation last year should urge municipal bodies to greater activity this year than ever before. The list of accidents resulting in temporary or permanent injury would fill a good-sized book. Insurance companies suffer staggering losses, as well as the owners of the automobiles and others concerned. The property damage alone runs annually into many millions.

There appears to be no recognized standard for judging the seriousness of the offense or awarding the penalty meted out to offenders who break the laws. Some judges give prison sentences, others consider fines sufficient, while others impose a fine and send the culprits to jail as well. Laws covering operation of automobiles are adequate in most cities and were they to be heeded a large number of deaths would be prevented. What we need now is not more laws, but more education on the subject to change the attitude of motor owners. Theirs is frequently one of the selfishness and carelessness rather than ignorance.

James Sinke, Director of Public Safety of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a recent report covered the situation as it exists in almost all localities. In that city, he stated, 86 per cent of the fatal auto accidents are due to discourtesy and disrespect for regularly constituted laws. The property damage accompanying the 792 deaths in this city last year he placed at $1,000,000. Two-thirds of the accidents happened, not in congested sections, as is commonly supposed, but on unobstructed highways with dry surfaces during clear weather and in daylight.

Most of the accidents in Grand Rapids were at street intersections. Eighty-seven per cent of all motor vehicles in accidents were privately owned passenger automobiles and 13 per cent were commercial vehicles. Another theory which Director Sinke disposed of was that the majority of children killed did not meet death in front of school buildings but after school hours. The more hazardous ages he placed at from five to nine and between seventy and seventy-five years.

Lack of consideration for others represents an unfortunate condition at all times. Giving the other fellow the right-of-way occasionally should not wound one's pride inordinately though the other man be in the wrong. Obeying the law about passing other vehicles on the left will, in the long run, be found profitable. The second or two saved by beating the railroad train to the crossing is the illusion of a gambler who can't win. It is a strange thing that drivers of vehicles seldom display the same good judgment employed when they are outside their automobiles. Legislation has done much good but it must now give way to education. This is being undertaken intensively by many municipalities and decrease in fatal accidents from automobiles may be expected in the early future.

NEW TYPE OF CONCRETE

ACCORDING to the Stone Trades Journal published in England, a new type of concrete, susceptible to sawing, planing and nailing, has been developed by a Swedish architect. This product is made of cement and shale lime, together with a small addition of aluminum of zinc powder, and, upon tempering the mass with water, develops hydrogen in contact with the lime hydrate. This makes the mortar porous, in which condition it sets.

With a mortar containing 40 parts of cement to 60 parts of lime, at 75 per cent porosity, the concrete weighs 40 to 50 pounds per cubic foot, and attains a compressive strength of 350 to 400 pounds per square inch after a period of six weeks. The material is resistant to weather and fire attack in satisfactory degree for use in practically all forms of wall masonry except chimneys. The building authorities of Stockholm, it is said, have approved the material.

MASS PRODUCTION OF TIME

ONE OF THE products of our modern industrial age is time, time in large quantities, time for employer, time for worker. Even the farmer works perhaps fewer hours than he once did.

If your father went to his office at 8 and stayed until 6, 10 days a week, with two weeks away in the summer, and you work from 9:30 to 5, 5 days a week with an hour and a half for luncheon, six weeks away in the summer and a run to Florida in the winter, what has made the difference?

Modern ingenuity is part of the answer. You may damn the telephone as an interruptor of work, but suppose you made a personal call or a visitor came to see you every time you lifted the receiver or the bell rang! Letter writing is so easy that many of us write needless letters, but suppose you wrote even the unavoidable letters with a pen! Suppose a horse car—not an auto—took you to and from work.

Time is made in many ways, but what is America doing with it now that it has got it? Much of it goes for golf and other outdoor pleasures. Excellent in moderation, for undoubtedly they lengthen the lives of men, and the time given to them in turn makes more time, a beneficent, not a vicious, circle.

And the mass production of luncheons and dinners and attending speeches--aren't they the result of the mass production of time?

And conventions, excellent and helpful things--where they be without the time to attend them. "Time and money," a worn old saying; and it is interesting to note that we use the same verb to describe disposing both of them. We "spend" both time and money. It is a wise thing to earn both of them honorably and spend both wisely.—Merle Thorpe in the Nation's Business magazine.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES

A. Reader: "Please tell me through your column how to clean a light gray felt hat. Also tell me how to cleanse and iron velvet."

Answer: Mix one quart of corn meal with one cupful each of flour and salt. Rub into the surface of the felt, let stand overnight, and remove by brushing. Spots of dirt and grime can often be removed with the finest sandpaper. Velvet:

Cleanse by sponging with gasoline (not near heat or flame because of the danger of fire) and when the gasoline has evaporated, stretch the velvet right-side-up over a large bowl two-thirds full of boiling water and brush the nap gently with a soft brush. Do not iron.

E. H.: "Kindly publish a recipe for cheese cakes."

Answer: Scald one cup of sweet milk with one cup of sour milk, then strain the hot mixture through a piece of cheesecloth. To the curd, add one cup of granulated sugar, the well-beaten yolks of four eggs, the grated rind and juice of one large lemon and a pinch of salt. Now line small tart pans with ordinary pie pastry and fill them with the cheese mixture. Sprinkle with finely chopped almonds (using about one-third of the almonds in all) and bake in a medium oven till the tart-filling is firm to the touch—about 35 minutes.

New-at-Housework: "I have recently painted a few kitchen pieces. How can I clean the paint brushes thoroughly and put them away for another time?"

Answer: Wash the brushes in kerosene oil or in turpentine, followed by soap and water. Rinse in clear water and dry. Moisten with paraffine oil before putting them away for a long time—but if you intend to use them within several months this oil treatment will not be necessary. In case you ever forget to clean your brushes before letting them dry, I will tell you how to soften them: Soak overnight in a solution of one teaspoon of washing soda dissolved in one cup of warm water; in the morning wash with warm water and soap. Often it is necessary (if old paint is calcined on them) to soak them for several days in a mixture of equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine before proceeding as above directed.

SORROW

You are lonely and you miss him, and you mourn him now he's dead.

But to spare you all the heartache would you call him back again?

Would you want him here to suffer for all life's misery in your stead?

Would you buy your days of comfort with his hours of endless pain?

It was sweet to have him with you, and it's often now you moan.

But would you have him suffer, just to keep him for your own?

Be not troubled by the notion Heaven is very far away.

It is nearer than men fancy, it is nearer than they know, And the loved ones who have left us every night and every day

Seem to draw us closer to them as their memories brighter glow.

They are safe in Heaven's keeping, they are free from hurt and pain.

But to save us from our weeping we would call them back again.

Tis for them we bear this anguish, 'tis for them we stay alone;

God has called them up to Heaven that they need not suffer more.

To a fairer realm than this is, have their lovely spirits flown

And they dwell in perfect splendor on that not so distant shore.

Once we watched them in their anguish, once we saw them in their pain,

Now, to spare ourselves this heartache, should we call them back again?

MODISH MITZI-Shows There Are Tweeds-And Tweed Silk By JAY V. JAY

Eleanor's dress is of grey tweed combined with lightweight grey jersey and has a full-length tweed coat to cover it, although she has parked the coat somewhere and isn't showing it to you. However, it's just one of those completely tailored things. Adelaide occupies

Three astonished and respectful young women are about to fall upon Mitzi, demanding the origin and price of her ensemble suit. They have tweed, Mitzi has super-tweed—an ingratiating copy of tweed printed on silk. A straight dress, slightly bloused, and a full coat cut to resemble, most deceptively, those rough and ready top-coats for which tweed is especially designed. Silks are printed in all patterns this season, and tweed silks is one of the newest and smartest of their more than fifty-seven varieties.

HARRIS CONFIDENT WASHINGTON WILL AGAIN WIN PENNANT

By HENRY L. FARRELL
TAMPA, March 16—Washington will have to win another American League pennant this season or break the heart and bankroll of the entire city of Tampa.

Unlike the people of cities in which the other major league teams are training in this section, those of Tampa have taken almost exclusive property rights to Bucky Harris and his band of Senators.

Those who haven't the time, take the time, to go to the ball park and show their claims to a personal connection with the team by addressing the players each by his first name.

Harris, who is ranked socially as one of the first citizens, feels sure that his team will deliver without too much exertion.

"No other team in the league has been improved any more than Washington and if we won last year against tough opposition why should we fail this year?" he asks.

The young manager of the Senators figures his team has been greatly strengthened by the addition of Joe Bush and Johnny Tobin and by a marked improvement in the batting and fielding of Joe Harris. He laughs off the opinion of critics who have visited his camp that the veteran pitchers will not deliver as they did last year.

When Harris traded Tom Zachary and Wm. Ballou to the St. Louis Browns for Bush and Tobin the wise birds said Sisler had put one over on him, but Harris contends Tobin is to be one of his best outfields.

"Joe Harris" is one of the best players. "He has been playing since the war with one eye as a result of a bayonet wound he got in France. He was operated on during the winter and regained the use of his other eye. He is so good I don't know what to do with him. Guess I'll have to alternate him between right field and first base where he can help out Joe Judge."

With the exception of Tobin, the team will be started as it played last year.

Pack, despite his bad showing in the last World's Series, will be back at short with Bundy Myers in reserve. Blaue will play third, Bucky Harris second and Joe Judge on first base. Goose Goslin, Sam Rice and Tobin and Joe Harris will make up the outfield.

"Muddy" Ruel and Bennett Tate will do the work behind the plate.

Four veterans, Johnson, Covaleskie, Joe Bush and Dutch Reuther will be used as the regular pitchers with Osgood and Marberry as first call reserves.

Johnson, Covaleskie and Reuther are said by Mike Martin, the trainer to be in the best shape he has ever seen them and Bush reported to the club in fine condition.

Harris expects Johnson to win twenty games or more, Covaleskie eighteen to twenty, Bush twenty and Reuther fifteen to eighteen or better.

LEARN'S WIFE DEAD THROUGH RADIO AID

SANDUSKY, O., March 16. Having received the announcement of the death of his wife in a hospital here as broadcast from WWJ Detroit, Adolph Debel, Pelee Island, Canadian Lake Erie today was enroute to Sandusky to claim her body. He telephoned from Leamington, Ont., on the mainland following his arrival there with the Pelee Island mail carrier late yesterday.

But for the fact that the announcement was broadcast and picked up by an acquaintance who conveyed the information to him, Debel would not have known that his wife was dead until the mail carrier arrived at ice-locked Pelee Island next Monday night.

COLORED ALL-STARS DEFEAT WHITE TEAM IN OVERTIME TILT

Xenia Colored All-Stars won the first game of the city basketball series among independent teams by registering a 40 to 38 victory over the Xenia White All-Stars in a special contest at Central High school gym Monday night.

A small crowd turned out to witness what developed into probably the most interesting game of the season.

At no stage of the game did either team hold what may be termed a comfortable lead and the advantage swerved to each side at intervals during the playing period.

Teams were deadlocked in a 16 to 16 tie at the half and two overtime periods were required to finally decide the result. Score at the close of the regular playing period was 35 to 36 and each quintet made one basket in the first overtime period. Anderson's fielder proved the winning basket.

Anderson was a star of the first magnitude for the colored constellation with sixteen points. "Pinto" Perrine, ex-high player, was the bright luminary for the White All-Stars, gathering twenty-two points during the pastime.

East High School "Lion Tamers" defeated the Central High freshmen basketball team 22 to 18 in the preliminary with Green 2.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

And now comes another splendid parody on "The Modern Belle." It is better than anything I could write, so here goes:

The daughter sits in the roadster,
And jams her foot on the gas;
She's driving outside the limit—
Be careful! She wants to pass!
The motor cops are her buddies,
She slips every fellow the wink;
She's got a good line and she knows it,
Though she's forgotten how to think.

Father's best socks are holy,
But she doesn't care for that—
It's much more important to daughter,
That she have that "won-der-ful" hat;
Father is earning the dollars
Laboring night and day;
And, just as fast as he gets 'em,
Daughter throws 'em away.

She goes to bed in the morning,
And mother may call and call,
But daughter is far too sleepy,
And doesn't get up at all;
The house is littered with powder,
And hair-groom and lip-stick and paint;
And things to make out of daughter,
The kind of a girl that she ain't.

Her hair is so very golden,
Her skin is so pink and white;
(Peroxide and rouge and powder!)
Her head is so very light;
She charlestons and smokes and rouges,
And no one has ever known,
Whether she's hard as she would be
Whether her heart is stone.

She falls in love with a "Jelly,"
Who has a collegiate stare;
She marries because it's stylish,
Tomorrow he'll get the air;
One of the very best matches,
They'll lead a scrappy life;
She's got a sheik for a husband,
And he's got a flapper wife.

The only thing I didn't like about the parody was that it was addressed to "Maxwell Sauer." Where did you get the Maxwell, Mack? I wish he'd be better. I went auto riding with Horace Prince yesterday and we only went 63 miles per hour to get my breath back, some time the first of the week.

Speaking of the blue pajamas in the Troy murder case, I didn't know what a pair of pajamas was until I was twenty years old. And there are other birds in this town who were just as ignorant as I was. I'm now trying to find out what a "teddy bear" suit is.

All Fools' Day is coming. Get ready to be foolish.

FACULTY WILL PLAY CENTRAL HIGH TEAM TO FINANCE DINNER

With its primary object the raising of funds with which to finance a banquet for Central High School's 1925-26 basketball team, a quintet composed of the high school faculty will engage with Central's first string basketers in a special game Tuesday afternoon, the 23rd, at the gym. Game will start at 3:30 o'clock for which an admission of 10 cents will be charged.

The school "profs" have been engaging in secret practice sessions to round out trim and promising surprisingly stiff opposition when the test of court skill comes next week.

Faculty will present its strongest lineup and will probably have Whithorn and Felger at forwards, Ballantyne at the jumping station and Weaver and Coach Victor Kolb at guards.

The school teachers have no hesitancy in broadcasting the allegation they will emerge from the fracas with colors flying. It is possible their belief of victory is based on the supposition Central's regulars may have gone suddenly stale after a long and arduous court season.

Be that as it may, the game should prove a thriller as the faculty, by constant practice, has built up what may prove a strong offense and impregnable defense.

REVIEW WILL ISSUE ANNUAL EDITION

First annual edition of the Central High School Review, composed of nearly sixty pages and combining scholastic, athletic and all activities of every description at the high school during the current school year, will be published about the middle of April, according to Principal Spencer Shank.

Presentation of the annual, the first ever attempted at Central High in conjunction with the bimonthly "Review," is being sponsored by students of the senior class.

The class recently set 200 copies as its goal in the inauguration of a sales campaign and this mark was surpassed by sixty last week, it is announced.

CENTRAL HAS LOTS OF DEBATORS BUT NO ONE TO DEBATE

Debating teams but no debates. That is the situation confronting Central High School following the collapse of the debating league sponsored by Wittenberg College this year under direction of John Slater.

Central High is a member of the league which includes Bellefontaine, Piqua, Troy, Sidney, Urbana, West Liberty, South Charleston, London, Washington C. H., and Newark.

The league was in its creative stage this year but a complete program of debates for the affirmative and negative teams at Central had been mapped out.

After two months of preparation under supervision of John Ballantyne, Principal Spencer Shank received word that other members of the league had withdrawn.

Central's scheduled debates with the negative team of South Charleston in Xenia March 19 and the affirmative team of London here March 26 will therefore not be held.

Announcement came as a great disappointment to the school as a whole and to individual members of the team. Plans for intro-mural debates at Central have been discontinued.

TREE PLANTING TO MARK FOREST WEEK IN AMERICA SOON

WASHINGTON, March 16.—A new record for tree planting in every state in the union is expected this spring, according to an announcement by The American Tree Association, which plans to bring this spring planting to a climax during American Forest Week and National Garden Week, beginning April 18.

Thousands of new members are being enrolled in the tree planting army, says Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the Association, who has published the Forestry Primer to mark 1926, the semi-centennial of the first step in forestry by the United States Government. For a stamp for postage the association will send anyone this Primer and free tree planting suggestions.

Thousands of semi-centennial trees are being planted and the planters are enrolling their names on the association honor roll.

The schools throughout the land forestry programs marking the semi-centennial will be put on during American Forest Week, the American Tree Association having placed a hundred thousand of the Forestry Primers in the hands of educators. On this educational feature John J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education says:

"There is no more important lesson for the American people to learn than the need of growing and conserving forests and trees. Our future development as a nation will largely hinge upon the success with which we can spread this gospel."

The Parent-Teachers Associations have been sent a message from headquarters by Mrs. A. H. Reeve, to join in the semi-centennial celebration. Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federa-

Priest Deportations Cause Rioting in Mexico

Enforcement of laws barring foreign priests and nuns from Mexican churches and convents is having a sharp reaction among Mexican masses, who fear a general assault on Roman Catholicism, the church to which the majority of Mexicans adhere. Police are using strong-arm methods to put down demonstrations of protest. Photo shows a congregation in a protest parade, and Mexico City police using fire hose on women who started a riot in front of a government building.

tion of Women's Clubs is now making a trip to the Pacific Coast, speaking in behalf of the garden week and home beautification. A tree planting day is scheduled during Garden week.

Through Earl Pearson, the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, as well as State and county school superintendents, Scout and Camp Fire Club leaders, according to Pack, are giving tremendous impetus to the endeavor to get the forestry message before the coming citizens of America. "Their help in this campaign," says Pack, "is another evidence of their earnest desire to aid in the constructive things. Dovetailed with the co-operation of newspapers of the land the Forestry Primer's message has gone to new thousands."

Every unit of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, has been sent a message from headquarters by Mrs. A. H. Reeve, to join in the semi-centennial celebration. Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federa-

SOLUTION OF LEAGUE DISPUTE NEAR PONDER DISPOSITION OF NESBITT

CONFESSED SLAYER
OF WIFE CONFIDENT
OF ESCAPING DEATH

Will Plead Temporary Insanity—State Is Undecided

By United Press
CHICAGO, March 16—Nobility paraded into a business like super-court room here today as dissident heirs of the late Levi Leiter, Chicago merchant prince, fought over a $30,000,000 prize.

The heirs are fighting over management of the estate which for the past few years has been in the hands of Joseph Leiter, son of the pioneer merchant. The noble descendants of Leiter contend Joseph's hands have been too busy building up his private fortune.

Heading the dissatisfied group is Lady Margaret, countess of Suffolk and Berks, who instituted the original suit to oust Joseph Leiter as trustee. She is a daughter of the late Lord Curzon, who married Mary Leiter, sister of the trustee.

While Lady Margaret is the only one of the noble-women represented in court, she is given moral support by Lady Cynthia Moseley, another heir of Lord Curzon. While the Lady Cynthia is not here now, she was here recently for her part in the "thirty million war" and gave depositions to use in the case.

Leiter is forced to get along without titled help, but he does have assistance of his sister who ranks high in British society. She is Mrs. Nancy Lathrop Carver Campbell, wife of Col. Colin Campbell of the British army.

The feud dates back some eighteen or twenty years to the time when Joseph Leiter frowned upon his sister's marriage to Lord Curzon. This didn't please the British nobleman so much and in 1908 he openly stated that Joseph Leiter was "dishonest man."

That started the battle which brought things to a Chicago court today.

There is a difficulty about Joseph Leiter's alleged difficulty on the Chicago Board of Trade. Dissenting contention has it that Levi Leiter gave his son $9,000,000 to get square all around over the wheat corner that failed. They claim the elder Leiter charged his son $2,000,000 and that the younger Leiter still owes the estate seven million dollars.

Nobility Fights For $30,000,000 Prize In Chicago Superior Court

By United Press

TROY, O., March 16.—While Jacob Nesbit, confessed wife-slayer, sat in his cell here today prosecuting attorneys and defense counsel were pondering Nesbit's future—whether he will die in the electric chair, go to the penitentiary or spend the remainder of his life behind the grim walls of Lima State Hospital for the Insane.

Nesbit today was the sleek salesman, clean-shaven, immaculately attired, his hair shining after the brisk application of a brush, all this despite the fact that he encounters no one in the jail except the few prisoners incarcerated there with him.

The young salesman appeared unconcerned as to his future, feeling confident, it was believed that he at least will escape electrocution. But his attorney, L. H. Shipman, entertained entirely different and less confident views.

Nesbit will plead temporary insanity, Shipman declared, expressing the opinion the state's first degree murder charge will not stand. The murder of Frances Diane Nesbit was not premeditated, he asserted.

State's attorneys, although themselves doubtful as to the first degree charge, were considering two courses. Either the charge could be set for disposition by the regular grand jury convening May 3, or an insanity commission could be called.

In the latter event, if Nesbit were found insane, he would be committed to Lima for life.

"If Nesbit is freed," Dr. J. S. Shinn of Troy, declares, "this murderous tendency may break out again and some day some other person will be the victim of his anger."

Shipman declares, "It will kill Nesbit if he committed to an insane asylum."

Nesbit, although he confessed killing his wife during a "red" rage, has pleaded not guilty. He is held in jail without bond.

SHOULD SETTLE WAR BY ARBITRATION

COLUMBUS, March 16.—The people should never be carried into a war to advance the financial interests of those who will never engage directly in the combat," wrote Dr. William Oxley Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State University in an article published by the Ohio Council of Churches, as one of the official selection for use in its "Prince of Peace" declamation contest among boys and girls of high school age, opening next month.

"All such questions," Dr. Thompson added, "could be and should be settled through peaceful discussion, conference and arbitration."

In another article, written by Frederick J. Libby, of Washington, executive secretary of the National Council for the prevention of war, he believes the theory of "peace by preparedness" does not work.

"Making one's own nation so strong that no nation will dare attack it," declared Libby, "has historically led only to enemy combinations and to a race in armaments which in the end brought war, not peace."

DOLLINGS OFFICER MUST SERVE TERM

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 16.—Within ten days, Dwight Harrison, former vice-president and general manager of the defunct R. L. Dollings Co., will begin serving a sentence of three years in the Ohio Penitentiary and will pay a fine of $5,000 as the result of the United States supreme court decision upholding the conviction obtained by County Prosecutor King, January 25, 1924.

Enforcement of the sentence marked the continuation of almost a year's legal battle. Harrison was convicted of making a false financial statement regarding the Phoenix Portland Cement Co., of Ohio while attempting to float a stock issue for the company.

BUSINESS BETTER?

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 16—Encouraging business conditions are reflected in the increase of the amount collected in income taxes, here.

D. B. Hiner, collector of Internal Revenue, estimates that the taxes collected this year in Pittsburgh will amount to $13,500,000 compared with $12,000,000 last year.

LORAIN MAYOR APPOINTS WIFE CITY'S NEW SAFETY DIRECTOR

Woman Will Succeed Man Discharged For Lack of Loyalty—New Director Is Mother Of Six Children

LORAIN, O., March 16.—Mrs. Florence M. Grall has been appointed Lorain's new safety director by her husband, Mayor William F. Grall.

She succeeds Henry George King, attorney and engineer whom Grall dismissed several days ago "for lack of loyalty and co-operation."

"I can be sure that my new safety director will be loyal to me," Grall said today.

Mrs. Grall is the mother of six children and active in social women's club work in Lorain. The youngest child is two and the oldest 14.

The new director will supervise most of the activities of the police and fire departments from her home she said.

"You see my first job will be to look after my children and my home," she said, "I expect to spend about two hours a day at the office of the safety director. The rest of the time I will keep in touch with things by telephone."

KIRBY OUSTED FROM FIRST FLOOR CELL

CLEVELAND, O., Mar. 16—Joseph Kirby, erstwhile "super" salesman of the defunct Cleveland Discount Co., has been ousted from his first floor cell in the county jail to the third floor.

"There was a little too much contact with other prisoners on the first floor," Sheriff Kohler said today, announcing the suspension of Deputy Lucian Nardi who had been "too intimate" with Kirby.

Kirby, who is in jail awaiting sentence in his conviction for using the mails to defraud, has been spending large sums for cigars, cigarettes and other "luxuries" for the other prisoners, it was said.

No prisoner is permitted to keep more than $10 on his person. Although Kirby was searched when placed in the jail, he has plenty of money, Kohler said, intimating that "money often paves the way for a man's escape from prison."

Ordinary day visits within the city limits, minimum $3.00; visits between 6 and 10 p.m., minimum $4.00; visits between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m., minimum $5.00.

Advice by telephone, minimum $4.50.

Ordinary uncomplicated obstetric cases requiring not more than three hours' attendance, minimum $35.00, for each additional hour, minimum $5.00, laboratory work extra.

Ordinary office visit, $1.50; medicine extra, consultation with another physician, minimum $5.00, anesthetic major, $15.00; minor, $10.00.

HEARING ON PHONE RATES IS RESUMED

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 16—Re-convening after several weeks adjournment hearings in the statewide investigation of proposed rate increases of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. were resumed before the Utilities Commission today.

The witnesses called were G. P. Cooper, president of Ohio Company, who outlined the company's operating costs; C. A. Kositsky, Chief Engineer for the company; W. T. Anthony, the company's building and equipment engineer; and John Uprichard, vice-president and general auditor.

The three last named continued to testify as to the value of services received from the American Telegraph and Telephone Co., through the license contract which exists between the two companies.

COAL MINE MAY BE CLOSED APRIL 1

ALLIANCE, O., March 16—More than 200 miners will be made jobless if the Deerfield coal mine closes down April 1.

Opened in 1895, the shaft has worked continuously, affording the village its sole place of employment. High wages scales and the present freight rates are proving too difficult a combine, mine owners say, and plans are tentatively laid to pull the machinery and flood the mine.

TAX GAINS

DALLAS, Tex., March 16.—Income tax collections today showed substantial gains in Texas for all lines of industry and business with the exception of farming. Collections for the first district at Austin showed an increase over the figure for the same period, a year ago.

STRANGERS SOUGHT AS SINGLE CLEW IN BURGLARY PROBES

Pair Who Visited Stores Believed To Have Been Yeggs

Clews have been uncovered by police in connection with the burglary of the Hutchinson and Gibney Co. and Jobe Bros. Co. department stores Saturday night or early Sunday morning in which merchandise and cash amounting to $1,100 was stolen.

"The robberies were executed with more efficiency and thoroughness and with less difficulty than any heretofore in Xenia in my experience," declared Police Chief M. E. Graham Tuesday.

It has been almost definitely established the burglaries occurred either late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

They were of the most ingenious character in the recollection of members of the police department.

Part of the locks on the front doors of both stores were detached and replaced in such a manner as to deceive Charles Phillips, merchant policeman, who remembers examining both doors on his rounds in the business section.

Police Chief Graham has notified authorities of Toledo, Columbus, Dayton, Springfield, Wilmington and Hamilton of the robberies furnishing a general description of two strangers seen in both stores Saturday night by employees, and who are said to have acted in a suspicious manner.

The two men, well dressed, registered at a local hotel Saturday. They left the hotel early Sunday morning. Police have the names and addresses they wrote on the register.

The pair made a prolonged tour of each department store Saturday night.

By coincidence, patrolmen on night duty were experiencing an unusually busy time with liquor law violators as evidenced by the fact thirteen arrests were made over the week end. Police say the manner of local robberies parallels a similar robbery in Chillicothe last week.

MORE INDICTMENTS EXPECTED BY GRAND JURY AFTER PROBE

Will Add Forty To Fifty To 112 Named Yesterday

CLEVELAND, O., Mar. 16—Between forty and fifty more persons were expected to be indicted next month by the federal grand jury which returned the true bill accusing 112 men with conspiracy to violate the Volstead act in the alleged gigantic alcohol ring unearthed by Federal operatives.

After turning over the huge document naming the men involved to Judge Paul Jones, the grand jury recessed until April 1.

Federal authorities next were to center their attention in Philadelphia. It was said today. Ten of the "master minds" of the alleged alcohol expose, living in the Quaker City are already under indictment.

Government employees, railroad, motor truck and warehouse workers were expected to be implicated in the new developments.

WHAT MY RELIGION MEANS TO ME

By R. E. BROWN,
Minister First Baptist Church.
My Religion means the Only Rational Explanation of the Universe. Among many voices one speaks with authority. God, a personal Being, created all things. There is a purpose in the plan and everything is moving toward an ultimate goal that is glorious. The world is spiritual and the highest value in it is the soul. But God is more than Ruler of the universe, He is my Father. The Bible is His Word revealed to me. Prayer is an experience as real as any other personal conversation.

Then, my religion is the answer to My Personal Problems. Our greatest problem is simply how to live. This is a religious problem. My hopes and dreams find expression only in religious experiences and activities. I find here a worthy goal and a worthy motive for my life. By exercising Faith in Jesus I find forgiveness for sin. Through the cleansing of my own heart I have peace with God which is essential to worthy living.

Again, my religion gives a meaning to life. Life is not an accident. God's plan, while big enough to take in the universe, is great enough to include every life. My greatest fear is that I shall fail to carry out the Divine plan and so make a failure of my opportunity, hence my religion means constant fellowship with the Spirit of God and constant dependence on Him for direction in the affairs of life. My highest happiness is found in His fellowship and, after that, in useful service to others under His direction.

But, to condense years of experience into a dozen words, my religion means comfort in sorrow, strength in discouragement, joy in trial, and then—the assurance of fellowship with the Savior and saved loved ones in a better world beyond the grave.

FORTIETH SNOW IS BRIEF BLIZZARD

A blizzard similar to those described in books of "the great open spaces" struck Xenia and environs early Monday night and had all the car-marks of a regular tempest.

Snow began to fall about 6 p.m., and aided by a strong wind gusts of snow were blown with great ferocity and traffic was impeded by the storm. Pedestrians were coated with white after being in the storm only a short time. The snow storm came from the northwest and lasted about a half hour.

Temperature had risen a fraction Tuesday morning and the last snow proceeded to melt. Xenians who kept an eye on the weather report that there have been forty snow storms in the city during the five months of winter. March has continued to show life and has displayed no intention of giving over the stage to the gentle Spring lamb.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

MARY WAITE, a stenographer, has a misunderstanding with STEWART HOWE, whom she loves, because she has accepted the attentions of an older man.

PAT HAMILTON, who is a prominent politician. Mary finds that Hamilton's interest in her is the wrong kind, and runs away from him one evening when they are dining together. Soon afterward she loses her position, and gets another with

STANLEY BLAKE, who has just gone into business for himself. She meets

CELIA STEWART, and together they set up housekeeping in two rooms. Celia meets Blake, and flirts with him. Celia some time later receives a beautiful Chinese lounging suit. Mary finds a card that has come with it, and reads it as she picks it off the floor.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXI—PAT HAMILTON AGAIN

A Hilda had come home with Hilda she drew back into a corner, wishing that she could sink through the floor. He strode forward and caught her by both hands.

"Mary! It's wonderful to find you here!" His voice was eager, enthusiastic. But Mary looked straight past him to Hilda, who was facing her angrily.

"Hilda—could I speak to you alone, just a minute?" she asked. "Please! It's awfully important."

"Turning me down for Hilda! All right, but after that 'minute' you've got to talk to me, also alone," Hamilton announced as he released her hands.

Hilda looked far from pleased at seeing her there, but Mary took her arm and drew her to the far end of the hall.

"Jim's home," she whispered. "And he was wild when he thought you'd gone out with Mr. Hamilton." "You told him, I suppose," remarked Hilda furiously. "Well, I don't care. If Jim thinks—"

"Oh, Hilda, he doesn't know you went with Mr. Hamilton, truly he doesn't. And he's brought you a lovely shawl. If you could just hide this one—let me take care of it for you, so that Jim wouldn't know you've got it, and then I'll bring it to you later, when he's not home—don't make him angry, Hilda. He loves you so much."

"Well, I—I—" Hilda hesitated. She was really afraid to take the long trip alone. It was after midnight. She'd had to wait hours for a car, and at the other end there'd be a walk of four blocks through deserted streets. His taxi was waiting outside.

"All right, I'll go," she said at last. She realized, as she reached the downtown section of the city, that she was frighteningly hungry. She hadn't been able to eat with Jim earlier in the evening because she was so worried about Hilda. Now she felt faint with hunger.

Hamilton seemed to have a sixth sense that told him that.

"Mary," he said suddenly, as they were passing a big restaurant. "Come in here with me and have supper, won't you? I'm hungry; everything's gone wrong all evening and I couldn't eat. You can put that shawl of Hilda's around you, and take off your hat, and then look as much dressed up as anyone there. You'll be doing me a real kindness. Please, Mary."

She went. After all, it would be all right, just this once, she told herself.

They sat at a corner table that was softly lighted by candles. Mary settled back into her chair, surprised to find that she was frantically tired; she had been so excited all day that she had not known till then how tired she was.

And then she sat up suddenly, forgetting her fatigue.

A Dallas, Texas canary, disappointed when she broke one of her three eggs and her mistress broke another, did her best to compensate for the loss by hatching twins from the third egg.

Max Marzel, of Newark, dreamed vividly of a street. He went there next day and found his auto, stolen the week before.

Herbert Clark was about to wed his fiancee, who, by a seeming coincidence, bore the same last name, when his father franticly telegraphed that Herbert and his Catherine are half-brother and sister.

Wired sounds, phantom figures, ghostly lights in a haunted house near Rome puzzled the natives living nearby. A skeptical investigator hid in the house and had his ears soundly boxed by the "ghost."

The Sheriff of Benton, Ill., shakes a wicked hoof, and when a Charleston contest was staged there he was a competitor. But when he returned to the jail he found that in his absence six of his prisoners had waltzed out of the county jail.

Greeting and place cards bear pictures of Blarney Castle and other well known Irish landmarks and contain the good-natured Irish sentiments. Irish beauties and shamrocks deck invitations to parties and one clever invitation is in the form of an Irish hat with the message "Here's an invitation hearty—come to our St. Patrick's party." Nut cups are formed of shamrocks and there are clever ice "stickers" of pipes, shamrocks and Irish favors.

There are also lampshades formed of green petals and green and white combined to finish green holders and white candles. Party festivity can be finished off with crepe paper caps in unique designs, for each guest. Irish lassies at spinning wheels and a border of shamrocks and pipes finish paper napkins for the occasion.

Candy shops are featuring green boxes of candy daintily arranged and clever favors in celebration of the birth of the Irish saint. A vanity case with a bit of green enamel, a green leather address book or handkerchiefs with green borders or embroidery are acceptable guest prizes.

The following recipes and menus would be both tasty and keeping with the spirit of the occasion:

FATALITIES DUE TO CARELESSNESS

THE FACT that there were, according to the National Safety Council, over 21,000 fatal accidents from motor vehicle operation last year should urge municipal bodies to greater activity this year than ever before. The list of accidents resulting in temporary or permanent injury would fill a good-sized book. Insurance companies suffer staggering losses, as well as the owners of the automobiles and others concerned. The property damage alone runs annually into many millions.

There appears to be no recognized standard for judging the seriousness of the offense or awarding the penalty meted out to offenders who break the laws. Some judges give prison sentences; others consider fines sufficient, while others impose a fine and send the culprits to jail as well. Laws covering operation of automobiles are adequate in most cities and were they to be heeded a large number of deaths would be prevented. What we need now is not more laws, but more education on the subject to change the attitude of motor owners. Theirs is frequently one of the selfishness and carelessness rather than ignorance.

James Sinke, Director of Public Safety of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a recent report covered the situation as it exists in almost all localities. In that city, he stated, 86 per cent of the fatal auto accidents are due to courtesy and disrespect for regularly constituted laws. The property damage accompanying the 792 deaths in this city last year he placed at $1,000,000. Two-thirds of the accidents happened, not in congested sections, as is commonly supposed, but on unobstructed highways with dry surfaces during clear weather and in daylight.

Most of the accidents in Grand Rapids were at street intersections. Eighty-seven per cent of all motor vehicles in accidents were privately owned passenger automobiles and 13 per cent were commercial vehicles. Another theory which Director Sinke disposed of was that the majority of children killed did not meet death in front of school buildings but after school hours. The more hazardous ages he placed at from five to nine and between seventy and seventy-five years.

Lack of consideration for others represents an unfortunate condition at all times. Giving the other fellow the right-of-way occasionally should not wound one's pride unduly though the other may be in the wrong. Obeying the law about passing other vehicles on the left will, in the long run, be found profitable. The second or two saved by beating the railroad train to the crossing is the illusion of a gambler who can't win. It is a strange thing that drivers of vehicles seldom display the same good judgment employed when they are outside their automobiles. Legislation has done much good but it must now give way to education. This is being undertaken intensively by many municipalities and decrease in fatal accidents from automobiles may be expected in the early future.

NEW TYPE OF CONCRETE

ACCORDING to the Stone Trades Journal published in England, a new type of concrete, susceptible to sawing, planing and nailing, has been developed by a Swedish architect. This product is made of cement and shale lime, together with a small addition of aluminum of zinc powder, and, upon tempering the mass with water, develops hydrogen in contact with the lime hydrate. This makes the mortar porous, in which condition it sets.

With a mortar containing 40 parts of cement to 60 parts of lime, at 75 per cent porosity, the concrete weighs 40 to 50 pounds per cubic foot, and attains a compressive strength of 350 to 400 pounds per square inch after a period of six weeks. The material is resistant to weather and fire attack in satisfactory degree for use in practically all forms of wall masonry except chimneys. The building authorities of Stockholm, it is said, have approved the material.

MASS PRODUCTION OF TIME

ONE OF THE products of our modern industrial age is time, time in large quantities, time for employer, time for worker. Even the farmer works perhaps fewer hours than he once did.

If your father went to his office at 8 and stayed until 6, 10 days a week, with two weeks away in the summer, and you work from 9:30 to 5, 5 days a week with an hour and a half for luncheon, six weeks away in the winter and a run to Florida in the winter, what has made the difference?

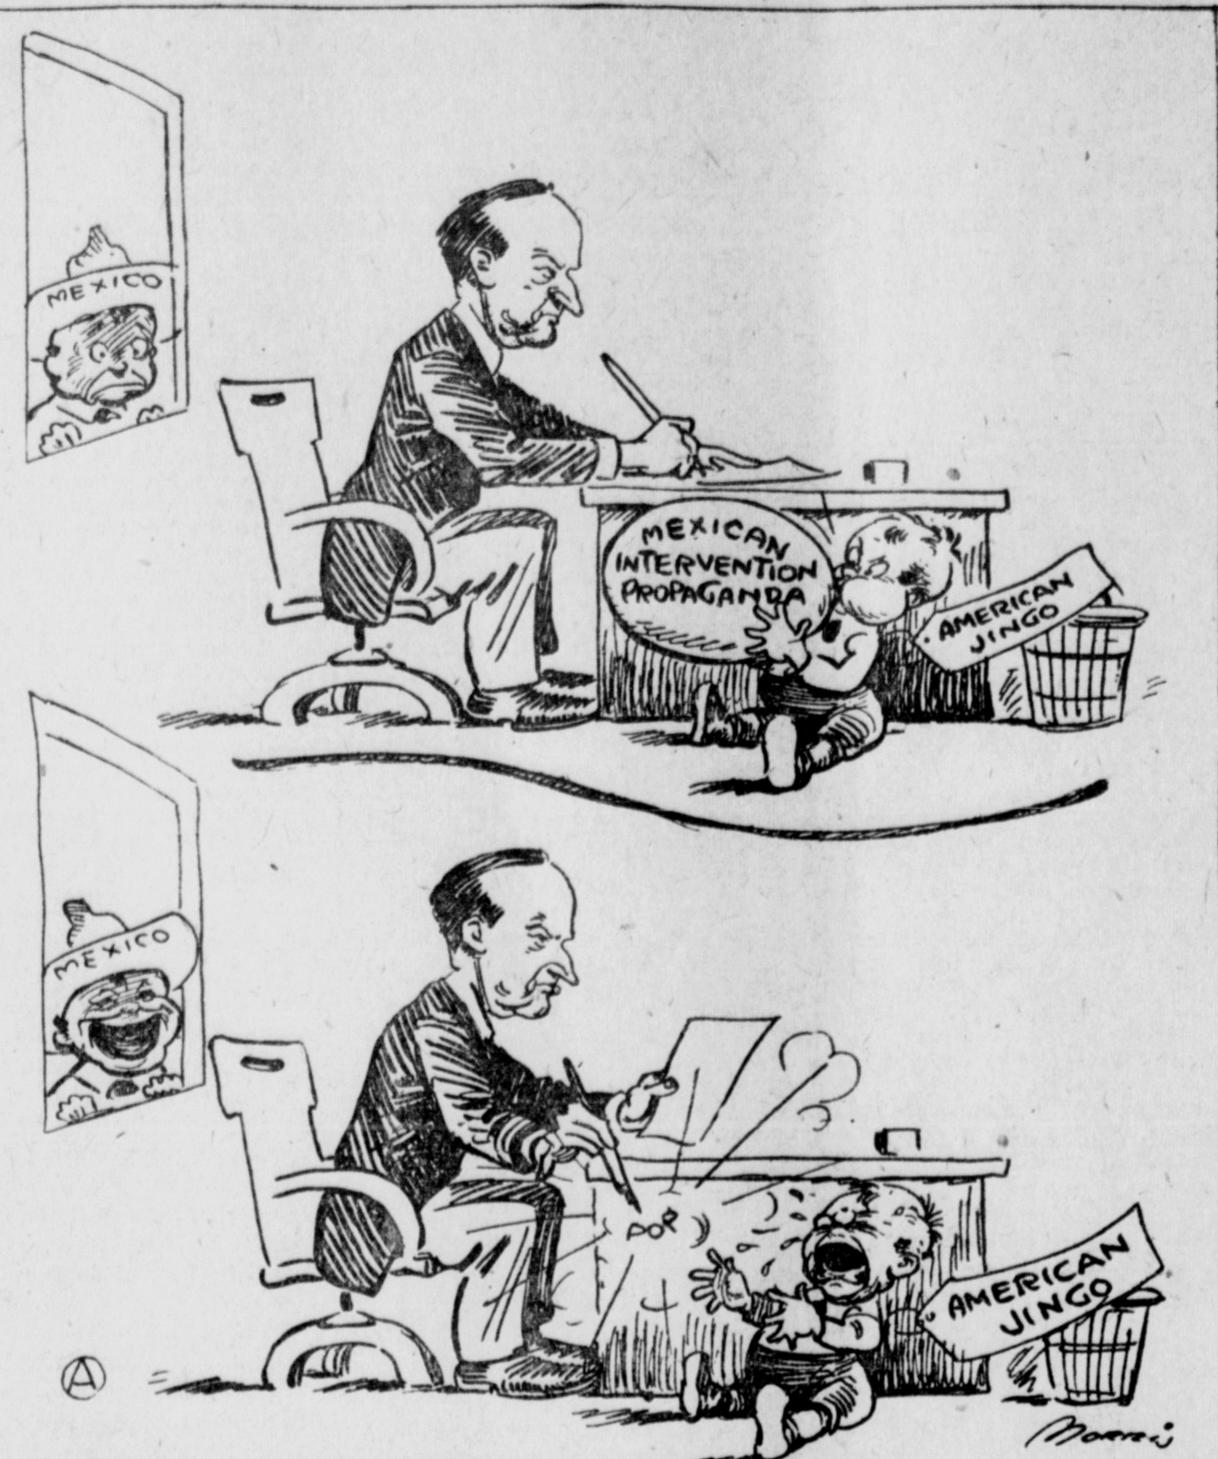

Modern ingenuity is part of the answer. You may damn the telephone as an interruptor of work, but suppose you made a personal call or a visitor came to see you every time you lifted the receiver or the bell rang? Letter writing is so easy that many of us write needless letters, but suppose you wrote even the unavoidable letters with a pen! Suppose a horse car—not an auto—took you to and from work.

Time is made in many ways, but what is America doing with it now that it has got it? Much of it goes for golf and other outdoor pleasures. Excellent in moderation, for undoubtedly they lengthen the lives of men, and the time given to them in turn makes more time, a beneficent, not a vicious, circle.

And the mass production of luncheons and dinners and attending speeches--aren't they the result of the mass production of time?

And conventions, excellent and helpful things--where could they be without the time to attend them. "Time and money," a worn old saying; and it is interesting to note that we use the same verb to describe disposing of both of them. We "spend" both time and money. It is a wise thing to earn both of them honorably and spend both wisely.—Merle Thorpe in the Nation's Business

A. Reader: "Please tell me through your column how to clean a light gray felt hat. Also tell me how to cleanse and iron velvet."

Answer: Mix one quart of cornmeal with one cupful each of flour and salt. Rub into the surface of the felt, let stand overnight, and remove by brushing. Spots of dirt and grime can often be removed with the finest sandpaper. Velvet: Cleanse by sponging with gasoline (not near heat or flame because of the danger of fire) and when the gasoline has evaporated, stretch the velvet right-side-up over a large bowl two-thirds full of boiling water and brush the nap gently with a soft brush. Do not iron.

E. H.: "Kindly publish a recipe for cheese cakes."

Answer: Scald one cup of sweet milk with one cup of sour milk, then strain the hot mixture through a piece of cheesecloth. To the curd, add one cup of granulated sugar, the well-beaten yolks of four eggs, the grated rind and juice of one large lemon and a pinch of salt. Now line small tart pans with ordinary pie pastry and fill them with the cheese mixture. Sprinkle with finely chopped almonds (using about one-third of the almonds in a soft brush. Do not iron.

Instead of a regular salary, he was allowed 3 per cent of all taxes collected for the safe keeping and disbursement of all money. His income amounted to but $14 in 1804.

Complete list of treasurers who have served Greene County from its organization to the present follow:

The sleepers are usually the kickers and complainers—when they wake up!

The streets in every busy city are sprinkled with sleepers who didn't finish their naps before they set upon the work of the day. They rove about as though in a trance, as though drugged.

Many a "boss" has slept while his assistant walked past him to become HIS boss.

And so it goes. The sleepers are outclassed. And they are the unmissed as well.

The writer of an essay I read the other evening, says that shepherds are never dull. They have to keep watching all the time. And so they have the time to think things out and to speculate upon the many events of life. I am told that Zorn, the great painter and etcher, started his art career as a shepherd and that he used to mould small statues out of clay as he tended his flock.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevices of the ingrown nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.—Adv.

Heaven is very far away, it is nearer than men fancy, it is nearer than they know,

And the loved ones who have left us every night and every day seem to draw us closer to them as their memories brighter glow.

They are safe in Heaven's keeping, they are free from hurt and pain,

But to save us from our weeping we would call them back again.

Tis for them we bear this anguish, 'tis for them we stay alone, God has called them up to Heaven that they need not suffer more,

To a fairer realm than this is, have their lovely spirits flown And they dwell in perfect splendor on that not so distant shore.

Once we watched them in their anguish, once we saw them in their pain,

Now, to spare ourselves this heartache, should we call them back again?

Three astonished and respectful young women are about to fall upon Mitzi, demanding the origin and price of her ensemble suit. They have tweed, Mitzi has super-tweed—an ingratiating copy of tweed printed on silk. A straight dress, slightly flared, and a full

By HENRY L. FARRELL
TAMPA, March 16—Washington will have to win another American League pennant this season or break the heart and bankroll of the entire city of Tampa.

Unlike the people of cities in which the other major league teams are training in this section, those of Tampa have taken almost exclusive property rights to Buckley Harris and his band of Senators.

Those who haven't the time, take the time, to go to the ball park and show their claims to a personal connection with the team by addressing the players each by his first name.

Harris, who is ranked socially as one of the first citizens, feels sure that his team will deliver without too much exertion.

"No other team in the league has been improved any more than Washington and if we won last year against tough opposition why should we fail this year?" he asks.

The young manager of the Senators figures his team has been greatly strengthened by the addition of Joe Bush and Johnny Tobin and by a marked improvement in the batting and fielding of Joe Harris. He laughs off the opinion of critics who have visited his camp that the veteran pitchers will not deliver as they did last year.

When Harris traded Tom Zachary and Winn Ballou to the St. Louis Browns for Bush and Tobin the wise birds said Sister had put one over on him, but Harris concedes Tobin is to be one of his best outfielders.

"Joe Harris" is one of the best players. "He has been playing since the war with one eye as a result of a bayonet wound he got in France. He was operated on during the winter and regained the use of his other eye. He is so good I don't know what to do with him. Guess I'll have to alternate him between right field and first base where he can help out Joe Judge."

With the exception of Tobin, the team will be started as it played last year.

Poek, despite his bad showing in the last World's Series, will be back at short with Bundy Myers in reserve. Blaue will play third, Buck Harris second and Joe Judge on first base. Goose Goslin, Sam Rice and Tobin and Joe Harris will make up the outfit.

"Muddy" Ruel and Bennett Tate will do the work behind the plate.

Four veterans, Johnson, Coeleskie, Joe Bush and Dutch Reuther will be used as the regular pitchers with Osgood and Marberry as first call reserves.

Johnson, Coeleskie and Reuther are said by Mike Martin, the trainer to be in the best shape he has ever seen them and Bush reported to the club in fine condition.

Harris expects Johnson to win twenty games or more, Coeleskie eighteen to twenty, Bush twenty and Reuther fifteen to eighteen or better.

But the cycle has turned. American golfers are practically pre-eminent and Charley Hoff, a Norwegian, is showing American vaulters spots in the clouds that they can't reach.

For the past six years, the United States has been the ranking tennis nation of the world. There were no men players in the world who could win from the American ranking players and no teams that could beat American teams.

But now the American tennis superiority is threatened by France and it is almost a foregone conclusion that the Davis Cup, symbol of the world's team championship, is all booked and tagged for France. The date for shipment is in doubt but it isn't so far removed.

America was invincible on the courts when Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston were in their prime. They are fading now and Rene Lacoste and Gene Borotra are just coming. The Lacoste-Borotra combination may reign just as long as Tilden and Johnston because Vinnie Richards is the only young player to take up the banner here and he, in reality, is a veteran who may have reached his prime.

American youngsters were inspired to take up tennis by the example of Tilden, Johnston and the youthful Richards and French youngsters are certain to turn their attention to the courts when Lacoste and Borotra become national heroes. Nations advance in sports in ratio to the interest shown in them by the kids.

COLORED ALL-STARS DEFEAT WHITE TEAM IN OVERTIME TILT

Xenia Colored All-Stars won the first game of the city basketball series among independent teams by registering a 49 to 38 victory over the Xenia White All-Stars in a special contest at Central High School gym Monday night.

A small crowd turned out to witness what developed into probably the most interesting game of the season.

At no stage of the game did either team hold what may be termed a comfortable lead and the advantage swerved to each side at intervals during the playing period.

The game was deadlocked in a 16 to 16 tie at the half and two overtime periods were required to finally decide the result.

Score at the close of the regular playing period was 36 to 36 and each quarter made one basket in the first overtime period. Anderson's fielder providing the winning basket.

Anderson was a star of the first magnitude for the colored constellation with sixteen points. "Pino" Perrine, ex-high player, was the bright luminary for the White All-Stars, gathering twenty-two points during the pastime.

East High School "Lion Tamers" defeated the Central High freshmen basketball team 22 to 18 in the preliminary with Green 2.

JEERED BY FRIENDS WOMAN KILLS SELF

AKRON, Mar. 18—Because her friends jeered her after she had been arrested on a charge of intoxication, Katherine Tabold, alias Grant, 41, committed suicide today shooting herself through the heart with a small calibre revolver. Following an accident Sunday night, Katherine and a man giving his name as Mortimer Grant, were arrested on intoxication charges after the machine in which they were riding was struck by a street car.

NORTHERN ALASKA

Last Frontier in Land of Mystery Has Been Explored and Mapped — Dog Fights Form Part of Expedition's Thrill.

By MALCOLM MACDONALD

DOGFIGHT in the Arctic is something to be remembered. It is an episode that may mean life or death to the human beings who are forced to play the role of unwilling spectators.

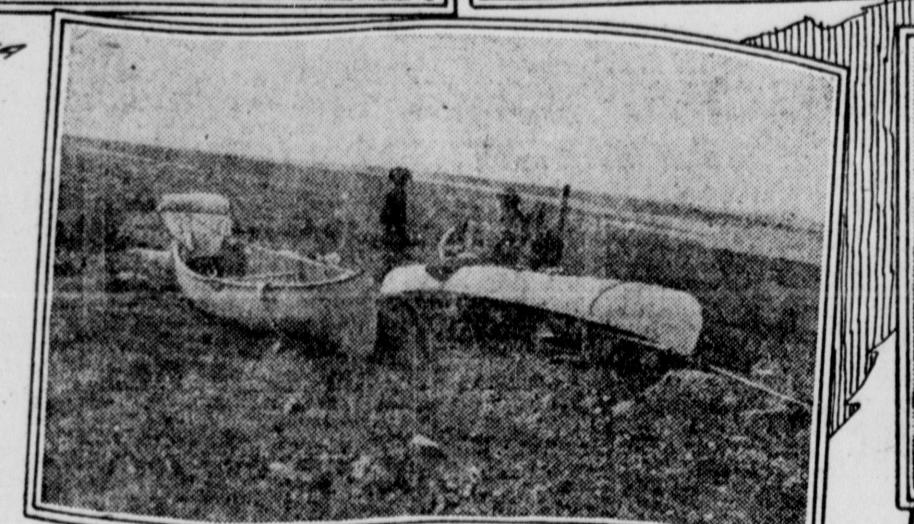

In the ordinary street fight the animals are of no importance. They are nothing but dogs. The outcome of the combat is a mere matter of idle curiosity to the crowd that gathers at the first yelp. In the five-foot snows of the Arctic the incident assumes vital significance. The dogs of an exploring expedition are essential factors of transport, to be guarded as sacredly as the supply of food. Under these conditions the conflict takes on a tinge of sportsmanship in which the bystanders may be gambling their very lives.

Arctic explorers have no inclination to let the fight continue to a point marking the survival of the fittest. Their sole interest is in the survival of their motive power.

The chewing-up of a few huskies may mean that the return to civilization will not take place—that the spectators of the dogfight have been left helpless in the snows.

Upset Starts Fight

"An upset sled is apt to be a signal for combat between the teams," says Gerald Fitzgerald, leader of an exploring expedition recently returned from the Arctic. "For long hours it is necessary for one man to run behind each sled to guide it by means of handle-bars. Often it becomes essential to go on snowshoes ahead of the dogs in places where the trail is obscured by drifts or by snow that is newly fallen. In such cases the sleds may miss the beaten trail and upset in four or five feet of soft deep snow. Little accidents of this kind sometimes result in dogfights—and then it is up to the men of the party to get into action."

The explorer can not afford to lose dogs. He must take no chance of having his draft-animals put out of commission by civil warfare. The instant a fight is started the travelers must try to bring it to a stop, and therein lies one of the true thrills of exploration. Some of the most exciting experiences during the recent expedition were brought about by dogfights and attempts by the explorers to prevent reduction of the dog teams. The man who has never tackled a pack of fighting huskies has something to learn about canine fierceness and the sharpness of teeth.

The dogfight of the Arctic snow-fields constitutes a part of the record of exploration recently completed by Government engineers in mapping the Alaskan wilderness of Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 4. The reserve embraces the last large frontier of unknown Alaska, covering an area two-thirds the size of the entire state of Pennsylvania. In mapping and examining the region topographers and geologists for the United States Geological Survey have engaged in expeditions which must be catalogued as explorations in the true sense of the term. They have gone into regions that others had shunned as too difficult; over an uncharted and forbidding wilderness of rugged mountains, uncrossed streams and tundra previously untried by native or white man.

Explored 7,000 Square Miles

Fresh from exploration of 7,000 square miles, Fitzgerald and Walter Smith have told me some of their experiences in fighting the Arctic. Fitzgerald is a topographer. Smith is a geologist. Both of them are trained to the great outdoors.

A LOADED SLEDO

DOGS SLEDDING CANOE ACROSS TUNDRA

HARD GOING OF THE SNOW THAT CAUSES DOG FIGHTS

Had they been less skilled in taking care of themselves they might not have come back. Self-preservation in the Arctic is no job for a tenderfoot.

Fitzgerald and Smith succeeded in startling even the natives of the frozen wilderness. With their two companions the explorers fought their way through a fierce blizzard in crossing Norton Sound. The setting included a blinding snow-storm and a temperature 30 degrees below zero on the Fahrenheit scale.

"In this blizzard," Fitzgerald told me, "the eyes of our dogs became encrusted with snow and ice until the animals could not see. This made it necessary for us to break through ahead of the teams. The trail was along the same route over which diphtheria antitoxin had been rushed to Nome a few months earlier. It was hard going, but we kept at it because we had to."

This stretch of the journey was something that the natives could not understand. After many miles of travel through the blizzard the explorers reached Keyuk, an isolated roadhouse kept by an Eskimo. Accustomed though he was to the rigors of the Arctic and the hardness of his neighbors, the landlord was not prepared to see dog sleds and four human beings emerging from the storm. His eyes went wide with astonishment.

Native Was Amazed

"Where you come from?" he demanded.

"Bonanza," was the reply.

The native's eyes opened still wider. He knew that Bonanza was thirty miles away, across the Sound. He was unconvinced.

"You couldn't do it," he told the explorers. "Not anyone can travel through storm like him." He waved a hand at the raging blizzard.

The voyagers found it almost impossible to make him believe that they had covered the thirty miles.

They had covered the thirty miles against the storm. The thing was unheard of.

The exploration trip was always northward, towards the head of the great Colville river, a stream partially explored but still largely unknown—river of mystery and menace. The trip was helped by discovery of a canoe cached a year earlier by an expedition headed by Geologist Philip Smith. The craft was taken overland to the Colville, and used for the trip to the coast.

The river voyage was a chain of adventure. Several times the ice in the stream had melted under the influence of spring sunshine, only to freeze again and again in recurring severe weather. This shifting of conditions brought trouble.

Dashing over white swirling rapids, through angry whirlpools, and beneath undercut snowbanks that threatened to fall at any moment the men paddled on, never knowing what was in store just ahead yet fully realizing that if a boat upset or was wrecked there could be no replacement of boat, instruments or food supplies. They were equally conscious that if one of the party should be injured there would be no chance for hospital treatment.

Thrills Of Navigation

At intervals too frequent to be soothing to the nerves the canoes struck rocky bars, requiring the explorers to wade in the icy water and drag it across, or lift it bodily. The Eskimo dogs followed along the banks throughout the river journey, and in order to keep within sight of the expedition the animals were forced to swim the stream several times daily. In making short trips over the rough tundra the dogs were used as pack animals, each of them carrying 25 or 30 pounds for distances up to 25 miles for a day's journey.

Along the Colville the voyagers found traces of Eskimo habitation long since abandoned. The natives had left igloos, bits of pottery and discarded implements made of bones, but had taken most of their possessions with them in their migration to the coast region. In much of the area, however, there was no trace even of Eskimos. The region was entirely unknown until the recent expedition.

One of the side-wise journeys of the explorers took them eighty miles up the Etivlik river, a large tributary of the Colville. The Etivlik is a turbulent stream, with bad rapids. For much of the distance the dogs "lined" the boats but for 15 days there was a constant series of wading experiences for the men in forcing their way through the tight places.

Homeward Bound

From the head waters of this stream, in the heart of the Brooks range, the party portaged over an elevation that proved to be the divide, and discovered a south-flowing tributary of the Noatak River. Descent of this stream enabled them to connect with the surveys of the expedition of the previous year.

In the native village of Noatak the party found a community of 250 people, containing neither white man nor half-breed. Another claim to distinction for this village is that not one of the population uses tobacco. Even the flapper's cigarette is unknown.

One of the recent discoveries in Alaska exploration is a remarkable crater in the southwestern part of the peninsula. This discovery came during the mapping and study of an 8,000 foot mountain already reported as a volcano. Close-up inspection revealed a crater approximately five miles in diameter, filled with ice and snow. The mountain side holds numerous glaciers radiating into the valleys like the spokes of a mammoth wheel. This is believed to be the highest crater of its size in existence.

Further study has now been made of a crater discovered in 1922. With a diameter of six miles, this crater has walls that tower 2,000 feet. The surrounding country is covered with many cubic miles of ejected material, and the interior of the crater affords many interesting studies of lava-flow, ash-cones dissected volcano necks, warm springs and other evidences that Vulcan is still active.

The giant leg-bone of an extinct mammoth was one of the discoveries of the Fitzgerald-Smith expedition.

on by the latter to the auditory chamber, containing a fluid. In that fluid float filaments of the auditory nerve, which are agitated by every vibration thus conveyed, and through this nerve perceptions of sound are communicated to the brain. Thus it is that we hear. The mechanism described is, of course, duplex, an arrangement of the kind being provided for each ear.

Connected with each auditory chamber are three so-called semi-circular canals, which have nothing to do with hearing. Their function is to regulate the equilibrium of the body. Your ability to stand upright or walk depends upon those canals, which contain a fluid called "endolymph." The "sloshing about" of this fluid is what causes seasickness in persons unaccustomed to the motion of a ship or boat.

Loss Sense Of Direction

The three canals are set at right angles with one another, so that one of them lies in each of the three dimensions of your body—one vertical, the second horizontal, and the third cross-horizontal. They are in effect three spirit levels. When you stand on one foot and close your eyes, it is these spirit levels that enable you to keep your balance.

Some physiologists are of opinion that in our remote ancestors the semi-circular canals gave a "sense of direction," which we have lost. According to that theory, the dog is by a corresponding structure enabled to find its way home from a distance of hundreds of miles. Similarly, the horse finds its way back to its stable. They carry the way back with them. A pigeon, carried a great distance by rail in a closed basket, will fly back not in an air line, but following the railroad.

From what has already been said it will be understood that your ears correspond in function to the mouthpiece of a telephone. Your actual hearing is done by a hidden and very complex mechanism which may easily get out of order. When that happens, deafness is greater or less degree results.

Auditory Ears Were Pointed

Feel either of your ears near the top and just within the downward edge. Is there not a small lump of gristle there, readily distinguishable to the touch? If so, you may recognize it as a remnant of the original tip of the human ear, which anciently—perhaps hundreds of thousands of years ago—was pointed. It is called the "Darwinian tubercle," the upper edge of the ear being now folded over it. It occurs in forty-three out of every hundred people, and in some individuals is rather conspicuous to the eye of an observer.

ience Has Been Making Some Wonderful New Discoveries About the Sense of Hearing—Teaching Deaf Mutes to Hear Through the Skin.

By RENE BACHE

RE you a little hard of hearing?

You think not? Yet perhaps you are, in some degree, can not be sure unless you test by a physician in knowledge of ears. You are only a little deaf, you may not have noticed it, nor probably will anybody else have done. Nevertheless, the defect exists, as you grow older, it is fairly to get worse.

Since lately has made some wonderful discoveries about ears, paper read before the Association for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Robert H. Gault spoke experiments he is making at Utet College, where he is trying to teach totally deaf students through the touch sense, reported "most encouraging"

"an idea," he said, "is to compare vibrations of speech to a skin area—as, for instance, beneath the upper arm—spoken words may be felt."

Five deaf persons have got a point of being able, with a degree of accuracy, to understand sentences of six one-syllable words.

During Through The Skull educational institution for the adopting with marked success an entirely different method, which persons thus afflicted are enabled to become efficient telephone operators. The student puts on a head telephone, with receivers in contact with the temporal bones of the skull, which are thin, flat plates directly over the auditory chambers of the inner ears. These plates convey sound vibrations to the auditory chambers, and thus that serve the purpose of "phone wires." Grind your own together and notice the tickling of the Morse code are distinctly heard.

It is not only through the ears that one may hear. Your teeth will carry sound to the auditory chambers through connecting nerves that serve the purpose of "phone wires." Grind your own together and notice the tickling of the Morse code is distinctly heard.

A frequent cause of deafness in children is "adenoids"—a growth of tissue behind the nasal cavity which obstructs breathing. It is easily and painlessly removable by a simple operation. Another not uncommon cause is infected tonsils, which, when discovery is made of their condition, should be cut out.

Defects of hearing nowadays are in numerous instances prevented by careful treatment given to the ears of young people suffering from the infectious diseases of childhood, which under some circumstances may become altogether abnormal, surprising quantities of the substance accumulating in the outer passage that leads to the drum. If it is not removed, it dries, and, being in effect a foreign body, may start an inflammation, by which means nature seeks to get rid of it. As a result, the hearing may be seriously impaired.

Defects of hearing nowadays are in numerous instances prevented by careful treatment given to the ears of young people suffering from the infectious diseases of childhood, which under some circumstances

Scarlet fever used often to leave the little patient deaf. Following that malady, during convalescence or later, the youngster is liable to have "running ears." This means that pus-forming germs have seized the opportunity to invade the ears and feed on their membranous linings. Their work is destructive, for pus is simply dead tissue.

Deafness in adults is attributable in most cases to common colds. Such colds are germ infections. The germs get into the Eustachian tubes—air-tubes, one of which leads from behind the drum of each ear to the nasal cavity—and, feeding on the mucous membrane that lines them, create a condition of chronic congestion.

Thereby the tubes are partly obstructed, interfering with free passage of air between the nose cavity and the drums. Thus the drums cannot respond properly to sound waves, and there is consequent loss of acuteness of hearing. A remedy, sometimes fairly successful, give the pus-forming germs a chance to find their way through the lymph channels into the brain. As a result, meningitis (an inflammation of the membranous covering of the brain) may develop, or abscess on the brain, the eventual outcome perhaps being idiocy. In measles and diphtheria precautions in relation to the ears have likewise to be taken.

Without an ear to hear, there would be no such thing as sound. What we call sound is merely an effect of air-vibration upon the auditory nerves. If there were no air to vibrate, there could be, of course, no sound. Suppose that you were standing on the moon at this minute, and a cannon were fired within ten feet of you. You would hear nothing.

What we call our ears are merely sound-catchers, suitably shaped for that purpose. Vibrations of the air, striking the drum, to which is attached the first of three little bones hinged together, are carried to the cochlea, where they are converted into electrical impulses, which are sent along the auditory nerve to the brain, where they are interpreted as sound.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

And now comes another splendid parody on "The Modern Bele." It is better than anything I could write, so here goes:

The daughter sits in the roadster,
And jams her foot on the gas;
She's driving outside the limit—
Be careful! She wants to pass!
The motor cops are her buddies,
She slips every fellow the wink;
She's got a good line and she knows it,
Though she's forgotten how to think.

Father's best socks are holy,
But she doesn't care for that—
It's much more important to daughter,
That she have that "won-derful" hat;
Father is earning the dollars
Laboring night and day;
And, just as fast as he gets 'em,
Daughter throws 'em away.

She goes to bed in the morning,
And mother may call and call,
But daughter is far too sleepy,
And doesn't get up at all;
The house is littered with powder,
And half-groom and lip-stick and paint;
And things to make out of daughter,
The kind of a girl that she ain't.

Her hair is so very golden,
Her skin is so pink and white;
(Peroxide and rouge and powder!)
Her head is so very light;
She charlestons and smokes and rouges,
And no one has ever known,
Whether she's hard as she would be
Whether her heart is stone.

She falls in love with a "Jelly,"
Who has a collegiate stare;
She marries because it's stylish,
Tomorrow he'll get the air;
One of the very best matches,
They'll lead a scrappy life;
She's got a shelf for a husband,
And he's got a flapper wife.

The only thing I didn't like about the parody was that it was addressed to "Maxwell Sauer." Where did you get the Maxwell. Mack'sick would be better. I went auto riding with Horace Prince yesterday and we only went 63 miles per
I hope to get my breath back, some time the first of the week.

FACULTY WILL PLAY CENTRAL HIGH TEAM TO FINANCE DINNER

With its primary object the raising of funds with which to finance a banquet for Central High School's 1925-26 basketball team, a quintet composed of the high school faculty will engage with Central's first string basketeers in a special game Tuesday afternoon, the 23rd at the gym. Game will start at 3:30 o'clock for which an admission of 10 cents will be charged.

The school "profs" have been engaging in secret practice sessions to round out trim and promise surprisingly stiff opposition when the test of court skill comes next week.

Faculty will present its strongest lineup and will probably have Whitham and Felger at forwards, Ballantyne at the jumping station and Weaver and Coach Victor Kobl at guards.

The school teachers have no hesitancy in broadcasting the allegation they will emerge from the fracas with colors flying. It is possible their belief of victory is based on the supposition Central's regulars may have gone suddenly stale after a long and arduous court season.

Be that as it may, the game should prove a thriller as the faculty, by constant practice, has built up what may prove a strong offense and impregnable defense.

REVIEW WILL ISSUE ANNUAL EDITION

First annual edition of the Central High School Review, composed of nearly sixty pages and combining scholastic, athletic and all activities of every description at the high school during the current school year, will be published about the middle of April, according to Principal Spencer Shank.

Publication of the annual, the first ever attempted at Central High in conjunction with the bimonthly "Review," is being sponsored by students of the senior class.

The class recently set 200 copies as its goal in the inauguration of a sales campaign and this mark was surpassed by sixty last week, it is announced.

CENTRAL HAS LOTS OF DEBATORS BUT NO ONE TO DEBATE

Debating teams but no debates. That is the situation confronting Central High School following the collapse of the debating league sponsored by Wittenberg College this year under direction of John Slater.

Central High is a member of the league which includes Bellefontaine, Piqua, Troy, Sidney, Urbana, West Liberty, South Charleston, London, Washington C. H., and Newark.

The league was in its creative stage this year but a complete program of debates for the affirmative and negative teams at Central had been mapped out.

After two months of preparation under supervision of John Ballantine, Principal Spencer Shank received word that other members of the league had withdrawn.

Central's scheduled debates with the negative team of South Charleston in Xenia March 19 and the affirmative team of London here March 26 will therefore not be held.

Announcement came as a great disappointment to the school as a whole and to individual members of the team. Plans for intra-mural debates at Central have been discarded.

TREE PLANTING TO MARK FOREST WEEK IN AMERICA SOON

WASHINGTON, March 16.—A new record for tree planting in every state in the union is expected this spring, according to an announcement by The American Tree Association, which plans to bring this spring planting to a climax during American Forest Week and National Garden Week, beginning April 18.

Thousands of new members are being enrolled in the tree planting army, says Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the Association, who has published the Forestry Primer to mark 1926, the semi-centennial of the first step in forestry by the United States Government. For a stamp for postage the association will send anyone this Primer and free tree planting suggestions. Thousands of semi-centennial trees are being planted and the planters enrolling their names on the association honor roll.

Priest Deportations Cause Rioting in Mexico

Enforcement of laws barring foreign priests and nuns from Mexican churches and convents is having a sharp reaction among Mexican masses, who fear a general assault on Roman Catholicism, the church to which the majority of Mexicans adhere. Police are using strong-arm methods to put down demonstrations of protest. Photo shows a congregation in a protest parade, and Mexico City police using fire hose on women who started a riot in front of a government building.

In the schools throughout the land forestry programs marking the semi-centennial will be put on during American Forest Week, the American Tree Association having placed a hundred thousand of the Forestry Primers in the hands of educators. On this educational feature John J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education says: "There is no more important lesson for the American people to learn than the need of growing and conserving forests and trees. Our future development as a nation will largely hinge upon the success with which we can spread this gospel." The Parent-Teachers Associations have been sent a message from headquarters by Mrs. A. H. Reeve, to join in the semi-centennial celebration. Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs is now making a trip to the Pacific Coast, speaking in behalf of the garden week and home beautification. A tree planting day is scheduled during Garden week.

Through Earl Pearson, the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, as well as State and county school superintendents, Scout and Camp Fire Club leaders, according to Pack, are giving tremendous impetus to the endeavor to get the forestry message before the coming citizens of America. "Their help in this campaign," says Pack, "is another evidence of their earnest desire to aid in the constructive things. Dovetailed with the co-operation of newspapers of the land the Forestry Primer's message has gone to new thousands."

Every unit of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, has
